Château Haut-Brion has long offered an excellent 'in' to the first growths by virtue of being the most affordable on average.

And its line-up here includes the cheapest wine of all – the 97-point 2021 at £2,800 per case (12x75).

Meanwhile, the 97-point 2016 is 50% more expensive!

There is a similar disparity between the 2023 and 2022. Both rated 98-points, the 2023 has a Market Price of £3,000, while the 2022 is 44% more expensive at £4,320.

Furthermore, Hindle said that the 2023 Haut-

Brion had the chops to be 'a potential 100-point wine' – stay-tuned for next year's in-bottle report to see if that comes to pass.

Both wines are currently available for below the average price for the last 10 vintages, making them extremely undervalued versus their peers and offering a potential buying opportunity for collectors.

- Cheapest of the first growths on average
- 97-pt 2021 is a steal at current price
- 98-pt 2023 likewise – cheaper than 2022 and 2018
