Another renowned Pauillac first growth with a sizeable and active secondary market.

Like Lafite, the 2024 wine currently represents the cheapest available vintage from this estate and offers value from that standpoint.

With a 96-point score from Hindle it's also cheaper than the similarly-scored 2021, 2017 and 2014.

The big surprise here is that the 2018 and 2020 both carry 100-points, yet are cheaper than the 99-point 2016 and 2022.

Popular opinion would contend that the 2016 and 2022 are among Bordeaux's greatest vintages of the last decade – though 2018 and 2020 are close behind.

Might Mouton have excelled in those latter vintages but lagged in price because of the 'lighthouse effect' of the other two?

Even if we downgraded the 2018 and 2020 to 99-points the price disparity remains worth investigating.

- 2024 again looks good value as the cheapest vintage
- Big surprise is that the 100-pt 2018 and 2020 are cheaper than the 99-pt 2016 and 2022
