

PRO'S PLAYBOOK

KICK TO SCORE

Former England coach Brian Ashton reveals an unorthodox attacking alignment that your opponents won't know how to deal with

A PRO MOVE THAT YOU CAN TRY OUT

↓ WHAT'S THE OBJECT?

To score a try via a kick-pass, a late run against the grain, or by chipping the ball over the confused defenders from a scrum

↓ HOW IT WORKS

By stacking both centres, both wings and your full-back in the five-metre channel at an attacking scrum. The defence will be forced into making a decision that your fly-half can exploit

↓ KEY POINTS

The wide men must stay wide! The fly-half's kick must be precise, and the late runs by 12 and 15 must be perfectly timed

THE PRO

England's head coach at RWC 2007, Brian Ashton is known for his innovative back play

PLAY A

Your 10 chips over the defence for one of his two breakthrough runners to score

PLAY B

If defence drifts to cover the wide threat, 10 hits 12 or 15, who can attack a weak inside shoulder

SEE IT ONLINE

For more advice on drills, fitness and coaching, including videos and diagrams, see the advice section on our website – rugbyworld.com/takingpart

PLAY C

If the defence don't dare match your numbers out wide, 10 can deliver a scoring kick-pass